President Roosevelt Sweeps U.S. Election

The greatest landslide in 16 years was recorded Tuesday when United States voters went to the polls, and showed their faith in President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the New Deal when they returned him and his Government with the greatest majority recorded in 16 years, 46 out of the 48 states rolled up smashing majorities for the Democrats.

The Democratic majority in the Senate was also strengthened by Tuesday's voting, and one of the greatest upsets of the election returns was the almost solid swing of the Southern States to the Democratic vote. Only in Vermont and Maine was Alf. Landon, Republican candidate elected with a majority.

"King" Is Crowned Queen

PROVO, UTAH, Nov. 4th.

For the first time in the history of Brigham Young University, a "King" was crowned "queen." This happened on Friday night at the annual Frosh Ball, when Miss LaVon King, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. King of Raymond, was crowned "Queen of the Freshmen" by Dr. A. Rex Johnson, of the School of Commerce, in which department Miss King is majoring.

With a perfect stage setting, of music and attendants, Miss King appeared, walked across the stage, and was seated upon the dais. Then Dr. Johnson, in a speech filled with sparkling wit, crowned the "King" queen, and led the procession of congratulations past the new freshman queen.

Born in the month of May, said Dr. Johnson Miss King should have much reason to hope that she "may" be queen forever in the hearts of her loyal subjects, the freshmen of B.Y.U. But those who know Miss King, and have heard her over CFAC, Calgary, in the trio with her sister, Noelia, and Miss Sybil Bacon, which was so popular last Spring, will know that she has a much wider circle of admirers than the freshman class at B.Y.U., although that class numbers close to 1000 students.

She defeated five other charming candidates in a close election.

HISCHOOL THROUGH A KEYHOLE

(By Denton Young Brewerton)

FLASH:

Last Sunday night your commentator was really shocked, as I sat in church waiting for the service to begin, my thoughts were far away. In one corner of my mind was the thought of the election to take place in the United States Tuesday, November 3rd, in another corner of my mind was the important thought of basketball. I was indeed far away from the town of Raymond. Just as I was about to make the winning basket, my thoughts were rudely interrupted. Who should walk into the room, but Herb Wilde, escorting that very cute girl of Grade XI, Lapriel Baker. To you Lapriel, I give my heartiest congratulations. Perhaps if you spoke to the Bishop, you might get a job working for the church. Remember, Herbie is not the only boy that should come to church but does not. Your job would be to see these boys, and with that something you seem to have, bring them to church. Possibly, you could collect a quarter for every boy you brought in.

FLASH:

We wonder what goes on in Mr. Redd's office, when school is not in session. Here all the teachers gather to get ready to start the school day, as the door is usually closed, the students do not know what goes on inside, when the teachers get together.

Miss Kittitz and Mr. Rolfsen sit in one corner of the room and discuss the terrible state of the movies, and they see who can find the most fault with them. Usually they are about even. Mr. Jacobs sits at the table, looking through a history book. He forgot an important history date, and his conscience is bothering him. Mr. Redd and Mr. King are bent over the desk in deep discussion. Pardon me, they are playing that clever game, tit-tat-toe. Mr. Merrill sits by himself in the corner alone. His eyes are closed and he is in deep thought. I am again wrong. I just heard a deep rumble come from his direction. He is asleep.

I wanted to bring to you a news item about "Cudd" Rolfsen but as he is like a butterfly, flitting from one girl to another I will wait until he settles down, before I comment.

Next week, to make this column more interesting, we will conduct it as a radio station, with an imaginary announcer and commentator.

THE HOME LOAN SCHEME

We draw the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the Bank of Montreal in this week's Recorder respecting the Home Loan scheme outlined and backed by the Dominion Government and concurred in 100p.c by Canada's chartered banks. It would be a fine thing for everyone to read the details of this scheme and think it over. We would not urge anyone to borrow if their prospects were not good for repayment, or if they did not require the additional advantage and conveniences the scheme would afford.

There are many families with growing children in them where an additional room or two may be needed, and the scheme would afford finance for this provided the head of the house can satisfy the bank that his circumstances are such that he could meet monthly payments on the loan. Then there are many homes that a coat of paint, or an overcoat of stucco would make a great deal more habitable and also add beauty to the surroundings. Interior alterations, plumbing, decorating, and in fact anything except movable merchandise such as furniture, pianos, radios, etc., would qualify under the loan scheme, also garages on residential property.

According to our understanding the maximum loan on a property is $2,000, but this does not mean that $2,000 must be borrowed. A person may borrow anything from $100 up for permanent improvements so long as he can meet his payments, and pay a fair amount each month. The loan was originally planned to be repaid in twelve monthly payments, but the time has been extended now so that home owners may have up to 3 years in which to repay the loan, with an interest rate which figures out at 6.32 per cent. When the present price of materials and labor is considered a great deal of improving could be done on a 1,000 loan if wisely used.

The discouragement and disappointments of the past few years have added a note of abandon and unsightliness to homes, both rural and urban, that tends to further discourage and depress. Paint or stucco, a new built in cupboard, a new archway, or a nice new porch added to the home would make the family take more pride in their surroundings, and feel like there was more to live for. People are very greatly influenced by their surroundings, and an improved home environment would unconsciously bring people out of the doldrums and in to a more optimistic and cheery future. If we are here to stay we want the best we can get.

POPPY DAY

Poignant reminder of those spacious days of glory and grieving, 'Poppy Day' once more recurs to prompt the citizens of this country in the duties they have inherited from the past generation. To Canadian youth in this year of grace, the deep-red petals of the Poppy may not carry the same significance they bore to the youth of eighteen years ago. The symbolism of sacrifice with which the Poppy has become charged is something to which the present generation succeeds only through the wistful memories of the aging men, who fought their Country's battles triumphed amid surroundings carpeted with Poppies.

To wear this humble emblem on Poppy day is to proclaim that amid all the jangling confusion through which this country is striving valiantly to penetrate the heart and mind are nevertheless attuned to a sense of homage due those men whose patriotism inspired 600,000 Canadians to offer themselves for service between 1914 and 1918; of that number more than 60,000 found graves in France and Belgium. And it is over those graves that the Poppy blows in perennial bloom.

The numbered dead were not strangers. They were young Canadians, filled even as the youth of today is filled, with the joy of living. So also, were the 170,000 men who in 1935 bear upon their bodies the marks and scars of war—the disabled ex service men who suffered disablement on behalf of Canada.

To manifest that proud recognition of their place in this Country, to mark that tribute which is their due, Poppy Day has been set aside in order that all may join in recalling the Great Sorrow.

The blood-red emblems distributed throughout Canada by the Canadian Legion's vast volunteer organization are the product of disabled veterans, men striving to maintain themselves in the Veteran's Shops administered by the Dominion Government. To purchase a Poppy is a small thing. For every citizen to do so is a big thing.

LET US ALL WEAR A POPPY ON POPPY DAY.

TO PROSECUTE SHORT
WEIGHT GRAIN BUYERS

UNLICENSED DEALERS
BRINGS COMPLAINTS
IN NORTH

Complaints about short weights and nonpayment for wheat being purchased by unlicensed dealers through Alberta have been received at the office of the board of grain commissioners here and prosecutions will follow. W. H. Blatchford stated today upon his return from a trip through the northern section of the province.

At Didsbury, Mr. Blatchford said an unlicensed buyer had been operating and several farmers had complained of non payment following delivery. At Leduc some buyers purchasing grain from the farm and trucking it into town are reported to be "chiseling" on weights.

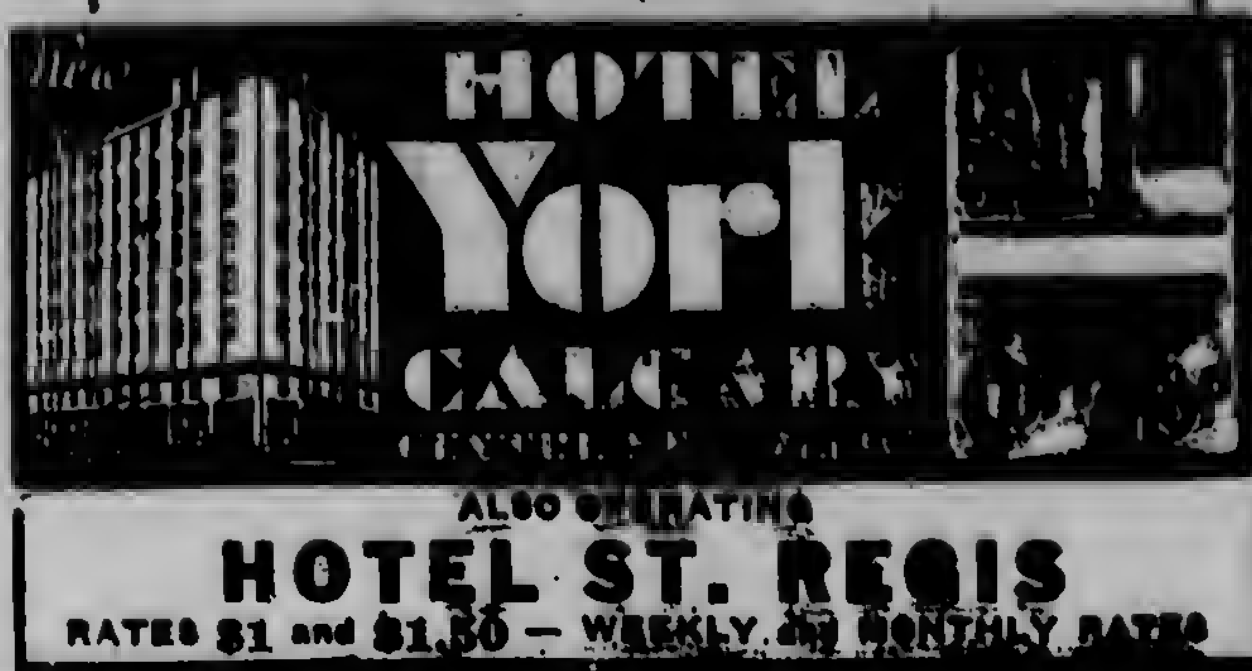

One farmer complained a load of 125 bushels had returned him only the price of 115 bushels; another in the same district stated he had been "short changed" as high as 20 bushels on a truckload and other complaints were along similar lines.

The major difficulty, Mr. Blatchford states, is on the part of the farmers themselves in selling to men not licensed by the board and consequently not bonded.

The Grain Act specifies that all buyers must be licensed and bonded, the assistant commissioner said, and farmers selling grain to other than recognized sources should be careful in that regard.

In any event precaution should be taken in event of sale to unknown truckers, to be sure and have some reliable person in town verify delivery weights.

EXPERIMENTAL STATION LETHBRIDGE

WEEKLY LETTER

SUMMER-FALLOWING
EVERY SECOND VS.
EVERY THIRD YEAR

Summer-fallowing has been accepted for many years as an established part of dry farming practice on the Canadian prairies. Many farmers summer-fallow half of their land each year while others have adopted a three-year rotation of one year summer fallow and two years wheat, and there is still considerable controversy in some localities as to the merits of these practices.

At the Experimental Station Lethbridge, wheat following summerfallow and wheat following wheat have been compared for 13 years. An analysis of some of the data of these tests may have some bearing on this question. The average yield per acre for that period 26.6 bushels per acre following in these experiments has been a summer fallow and 15.8 bushels following a wheat crop. If these yields were applied to a one section farm where half of the land was summer fallowed each year, the average yield for the entire acreage of the farm would be 8512 bushels per year. The three year rotation with an average of 26.6 bushels on the fallow and 15.8 bushels on the stubble would give a total production of 9024 bushels per year more with the three-year rotation than with the two year rotation.

It is difficult to compare the exact cost of two types of farming as one may spread the work more evenly over the year than does the other and thus help to avoid expensive rush seasons. The actual work required for various farm operations can quite easily be tabulated, however, and this has been done on the various rotations at the Station. Labour costs are available for a period of 21 years on a two-year rotation of summer fallow and wheat and a three-year rotation of summer fallow, wheat and wheat, which makes it possible to arrive at some idea of the net profit from these two types of farming under conditions prevalent at the Station. Over his period of 21 years, which is for the crops of 1912 and 1935 inclusive, the net returns from the three year rotation have been 67 cents per acre per year more than the return from the two-year rotation.

Another advantage for the three-year rotation in addition to the slightly greater net returns is that a smaller portion of the farm is exposed to dangers from soil drifting. Another important advantage of the two year rotation is that there is not so much chance of a complete failure in dry years on summerfallowed land as on land that has been cropped the preceding year.

There are some definite advantages that the two year rotation appears to have over the three year rotation. With the larger part of the field under summer fallow, the work is spread out more uniformly over the season thus reducing the peak load of work at seeding time and harvest. Weed control is also more effective where the land is summer-fallowed very second year than it is where a summer-fallow is included only every third year.

The above data indicates why there is still a controversy between those favouring the two year and three-year rotations. At the Station where effective drift control is practised the two year rotation is preferred because of its greater efficiency in weed control and its tendency to keep the production higher in the critical dry years.
